TRANSFER OF COPYRIGHT AGREEMENT

Copyright to the above-listed unpublished and original article submitted by the above author(s), the abstract forming part thereof, and any subsequent errata (collectively, the “Article”) is hereby transferred to the CCR for the full term thereof throughout the world, subject to the Author Rights (as here in after defined) and to acceptance of the Article for publication in a journal of CCR. This transfer of copyright includes all material to be published as part of the Article (in any medium), including but not limited to tables, figures, graphs, movies, and other multimedia files. CCR shall have the right to register copyright to the Article in its name as claimant, whether separately or as part of the journal issue or other medium in which the Article is included.

The author(s), and in the case of a Work Made For Hire, the employer named below, shall have the following rights (the “Author Rights”):

- (1) All proprietary rights other than copyright, such as patent rights.
- (2) The nonexclusive right, after publication by CCR, to give permission to third parties to republish print versions of the Article or a translation thereof, or excerpts there from, without obtaining permission from CCR, provided the CCR-prepared version is not used for this purpose, the Article is not republished in another journal, and the third party does not charge a fee. If the CCR version is used, or the third party republishes in a publication or product charging a fee for use, permission from CCR must be obtained.
- (3) The right to use all or part of the Article, including the CCR-prepared version without revision or modification, on the author(s)’ web homepage or employer’s website and to make copies of all or part of the Article, including the CCR-prepared version without revision or modification, for the author(s)’ and/or the employer’s use for educational or research purposes.
- (4) The right to post and update the Article on free-access e-print servers as long as files prepared and/or formatted by CCR or its vendors are not used for that purpose. Any such posting made or updated after acceptance of the Article for publication shall include a link to the online abstract in the CCR journal or to the entry page of the journal. If the author wishes the CCR-prepared version to be used for an online posting other than on the author(s)’ or employer’s website, CCR permission is required; if permission is granted, CCR will provide the Article as it was published in the journal, and use will be subject to CCR terms and conditions.
- (5) The right to make, and hold copyright in, works derived from the Article, as long as all of the following conditions are met: (a) at least one author of the derived work is an author of the Article; (b) the derived work includes at least ten (10) percent of new material not covered by CCR’s copyright in the Article; and (c) the derived work includes no more than fifty (50) percent of the text (including equations) of the Article. If these conditions are met, copyright in the derived work rests with the authors of that work, and CCR (and its successors and assigns) will make no claim on that copyright. If these conditions are not met, explicit CCR permission must be obtained. Nothing in this Section shall prevent CCR (and its successors and assigns) from exercising its rights in the Article.

All copies of part or all of the Article made under any of the Author Rights shall include the appropriate bibliographic citation and notice of the CCR copyright.

By signing this Agreement, the author(s), and in the case of a Work Made For Hire, the employer, jointly and severally represent and warrant that the Article is original with the author(s) and does not infringe any copyright or violate any other right of any third parties, and that the Article has not been published elsewhere, and is not being considered for publication elsewhere in any form, except as provided herein. If each author's signature does not appear below, the signing author(s) represent that they sign this Agreement as authorized agents for and on behalf of all the authors, and that this Agreement and authorization is made on behalf of all the authors. The signing author(s) (and, in the case of a Work Made For Hire, the signing employer) also represent and warrant that they have the full power to enter into this Agreement and to make the grants contained herein.
